FATAL FROSTS.

Special to the Gazette.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Reports from Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois, all agree that serious damage has been done the fruit crop.

LAKE DISASTER.

Special to the Gazette.

DETROIT, April 12.—The schooner's Thomas Parsons and Clayton Belle collided at 3 o'clock this morning, the Belle sinking, and the captain and three other men drowned. Loss, $25,000.

JESSE JAMES.

WATERTOWN, April 10.—Judge James C. McHenry, of Jefferson, Missouri, is the first gentleman who has arrived here from the State headquarters since the killing of Jesse James. Your correspondent questioned him:

"Has the excitement over the killing died out yet?"

"There is still some talk about it."

"There is no question as to the man being the right one?"

"No."

"What is the feeling of the people of Missouri as toward Governor Crittenden?"

"Instead of the people praising Governor Crittenden they are censorious at the manner of Jesse's taking off."

"Does not the less intelligent element denounce the Governor?"

"No element especially denounces him. They look upon the affair as they would a kind of dog fight."

"Will his killing be avenged?"

"I do not think so. The governor is not blamed by any class, but it is thought that Jesse should have had a chance."

"What do you think of Governor Crittenden's action with Ford?"

"It is a question whether he hired Ford. Both said Ford meant to kill him but what the Governor promised Ford no one has said. At the time of the last train robbery the sentiment was to get rid of Jesse through any means, but I think it was a mistake to clothe Ford with any official authority."

Colonel M. J. Leaning was asked his opinion of Governor Crittenden's action, and said: "I think it ought to be sustained, and I think it will be in view of the result. Crittenden's predecessors tried to get rid of Jesse James for several years, and all the appliances known to the law was brought to bear and resulted in failure, and in my notion Governor Crittenden was justified in using any means. I think his killing will, to a certain extent, help the State."

Here Judge McHenry interrupted: "It will remove a stigma and disgrace."

Colonel Leaning continued: "I don't think Jesse James ever kept any one from coming into the State. It removes the opportunity which Carl Schurz embraced to call Missouri the 'robber State.' So far as the manner of his killing, he had the same mercy shown him that he extended his victims. He always had the drop on them. He appeared when least expected. I saw Governor Crittenden the day Jesse was killed. He has no fears of vengeance. As to the pardoning of Ford, he had nothing to say. Jesse's killing is looked upon as the grand finale of the business among all classes, and the days of the gang are now numbered. Frank James, it is concluded, still lives."

"Throw Physic to the Dogs, I'll None"

We do not feel like blaming Macbeth for this expression of disgust. Even nowadays most of the cathartics are great repulsive pills, enough to "turn one's stomach." Had Macbeth ever taken Dr. Pierce's "Purgative Pellets," he would not have uttered those words of contempt. By druggists.

A SOCIETY SENSATION.

WAUKESHA, April 11.—News was received here to-day of the elopement of Miss Mary Rice, of Merton, with a Chicago man by the name of Cowey, and is the topic of conversation among society people. Miss Rice is the only daughter of ex-Senator J. A. Rice, who is well-known throughout the country, having figured prominently in several National enterprises. Dr. Rice, aside from being a prominent physician, is a noted archaeologist, having given the subject a life-long study. Miss Rice is well known in society circles all over the State, and has many intimate acquaintances in the very first families, and the announcement of her elopement will undoubtedly create a profound sensation. She is a graduate of Bardonia Seminary, at Oconomowoc, and is a young lady of more than ordinary accomplishments. She is a petite blonde of 19, and would be attractive in any social gathering. The young man with whom she eloped is apparently a stranger to her, she having known him only a short time. Various reasons are given by society gossip for her elopement. Miss Rice is well known in Milwaukee, having visited friends there during school vacations.

THE RAILWAYS.

MILWAUKEE, April 10.—The rush of the railway companies last year to extend their lines westward, which resulted in the partial construction of numerous branches in Minnesota and Dakota by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & Northwestern lines, is not to be repeated this year. But few surveying gangs have been sent out, and a report has been current here during the past few days that the stagnation in construction work out west has been brought about by a mutual understanding between the officials of both companies. The companies are, however, completing the main lines projected and contracted for last year, and are utilizing the wood and iron material left over from last season. Other western companies are doing likewise. This the officials here claim is the cause also of the sudden stagnation in the English rail business, as it is believed that American manufacturers are fully able to meet the present demand.

"Golden Medical Discovery," (words registered as a trade mark) cures all humors from the pimple or eruption to great virulent eating ulcers.

OBITUARY.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., April 10.—At an early hour this morning, at his home in this city, the Hon. F. R. Townsend breathed his last. For some time past his health has been such as to necessitate a partial withdrawal from business, but his death was sudden. Mr. Townsend was a native of Troy, N. Y., having come to this place in 1851, and has since that date been actively engaged in business. Some time since he withdrew from the bank of Sheboygan, of which he was president. He was the treasurer of the Sheboygan manufacturing company, of this place, at the time of his death, and one of the largest capitalists of the city. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

"When I publicly testified that I had been cured of a terrible skin humor by the Cuticura Remedies, I did so that others might be cured, and do not regret the time given to answering questions,"—Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston.

CATAKILL.—Relief in five minutes in every case; gratifying, wholesome relief beyond a money value. Cure begins from first application, and is rapid, radical and permanent. Ask for Sanford's, Radical Cure. Complete for $1.

A TELEGRAPH SUIT.

MILWAUKEE, April 11.—The suit of Marcus Hermann vs. the Western Union telegraph company, wherein the plaintiff sued for $2,000 damages for the non-delivery of a night message sent to his partner in New York, which occupied the attention of Judge Mann in the county court for several days, came to an end to-day. The judge directed the jury to find a verdict for only the cost of the message, holding that the company's conditions at the head of the blanks, to the effect that the company shall not be liable for damage to the amount of more than ten times the cost of the sending; also, that unless claim for damages is entered before the end of twenty days after the error was made, were reasonable and binding.

The "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce cures "female weakness" and kindred affections. By druggists.

WISCONSIN MILLERS.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 11.—The sixth annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Millers' Association was held here to-day. The question of organizing a system of mutual insurance was discussed, but no action was taken. A resolution was passed to appoint a committee to consider what can be adopted to the end of suppression of gambling in grain. The following officers were elected: President, E. Sanders; First Vice President, J. L. Clement; Second Vice President, Otto Ruhlman; Secretary and Treasurer, S. H. Seaman; Delegate to the National convention, J. L. Clement.

FLIES AND BUGS.

DECLINE OF MAN.

Nervous weakness, Dyspepsia, Impotence Sexual Debility, cured by Wells' Health Renewer, $1. At Druggists. Depot, Prentice & Evenson, Janesville.

THE CHINESE BILL.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A new program has been adopted to insure the speedy passage of another Chinese bill. Senator Miller last night saw the President, and had a free conversation with him. To-day he had a long and unrehearsed interview with the attorney general, and as the result of his conference, a bill is being prepared, to-night, with the design of having it introduced in the House to-morrow, and referred to the committee on education and labor. The plan is to have the bill promptly reported back to the House, and on Monday, waive its passage under suspension of the rules, as may be done, leaving one hour for debate. It is believed it can be passed without delay. This bill will be modified as to provisions affecting registration and passports, and the restrictive limit will be reduced to ten years.

BORDEN SELLICK & Co., Chicago, sell the best and cheapest Car Starter made. With it one man can move a freight car

A HEAVY ROBBERY.

HUDSON, Wis., April 11.—About a week ago Thomas Corr, for several years a resident of this city, but located out in the town of Troy, drew $12,000 out of the savings bank here for the purpose of going down into Illinois to buy horses. On reaching Chicago he took into his confidence two or three sharps, who volunteered information, and assistance in relation to purchasing. When he took the train for the interior they accompanied him. After it got under full headway one of the gang grabbed for his wealth, which was in an inside coat pocket, and the two leaped from the cars with their booty.

Emerald Grove.

—John Cummings and Alvah King went out to Hand county, Dakota, last week, with two loads of goods. Mr. Cummings will return soon.

—J. C. Plumb, proprietor of the Milton nursery, very kindly donated a number of young apple trees to be set out on the grounds of the Congregational parsonage.

—The firm of Squire & Munger is now no more. They have sold out to E. A. Hastings, son of W. D. Hastings, of Janesville, who succeeds in the business. The senior member of the firm, William S. Squire, was formerly in business at Fairfield. Augustus C. Munger came here from Palmyra. They commenced business here in January, 1875, succeeding the Earl Brothers, who went to Chicago. Besides carrying on the store, they have run a peddler wagon every summer, taking in country produce. The postoffice under the present management, has been improved with increased facilities for handling the mail matter. Mr. Squire now resigns the postoffice in favor of E. A. Hastings. Both Messrs. Squire and Munger will continue to reside in Emerald Grove. The latter gentleman will probably remain in the store to assist the Hastings. In closing their business here they may feel assured they have the good will and best wishes of all their old customers.

—On April 3, Nelson D. Butler, who recently went to Dakota, had the misfortune to have his household goods, family clothing and large supply of groceries and provisions burned up by a prairie fire, while he was gone. He had a building burned and considerable grain. Ensign Ransom lost a good deal of corn. The loss falls very heavily on Mr. Butler, though fortunately his family had not yet gone out. The case is one that commends itself to the sympathy of all, as the family are left destitute of every thing.

The Congregational church was beautifully decorated on Sabbath last with a large collection of house plants provided very kindly by Mesdames D. A. Cummings and Chapin. Twelve members were received into the church.

Workmen.

Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs strengthening and cleansing to prevent an attack of Ague, Biliousness or Spring Fever, or some other spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and great expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait. See another column.

Lima Center.

—The entertainment at Holland's hall on Saturday evening last was a great success, both in point of attendance and in the style in which the actors rendered their various parts. Where all did so well it may perhaps be somewhat invidious to refer to particulars. However we are going to risk the thought that some of the fashionable singers of the present day might do well to take a few lessons of the Misses Hall in the matter of articulation. Their words were easily understood in any part of the room. The Oration by Mr. C. B. Hull on "True Workmanship," judged by the remarks heard concerning it, is an article of much more than ordinary merit and was delivered in an easy and graceful manner. The acting of Mr. E. L. Lowe in the part of "Jonathan Serogins," in the play called "Pumpkin Ridge" could not easily be improved. The "Society Waltz" by the Misses Hall at the organ, Mr. L. C. Aldridge, flageolet and Mr. C. M. Jones, violin, was heartily enjoyed. The audience rendered a verdict at the close of the exercises by requesting without a dissenting voice the repetition of the entertainment on Saturday evening next April 15th. The programme will be almost entirely new and the proceeds will for the same purpose, viz building sidewalks in our village.

—The Hon. George Gleason returned on Tuesday last from a business trip to Bloomington Ill.

—Mr. Jesse Collins has lately returned from Chicago where he underwent a surgical operation for the removal of a cancer from the lower lip. He is able to name all the different bones, muscles, teeth, etc., removed. Suffice it to say they are more than we would like to part with. Mr. C. will soon emigrate to Huron, Dakota Territory.

—Mrs. Wilson, two miles southeasterly from Lima Centre, is on the sick list.

Shoppers.

—Last Wednesday evening there was a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Parker, which was a genuine surprise to them. About twenty of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Parker gathered at their house by invitation of Alston and Mary Parker, and found Sarah in the center, and observing as we move it ever so slightly, the magic rays of varying light illumine its surface, that it was an object of profound reverence to the ancients? The possessor was supposed never to grow poorer, but always to increase his substance. The largest known is now in the possession of Mr. Bryce Wright, the well-known mineralogist. It is recorded in the annals of Ceylon, and known to history as the finest in the world. Two stars of lesser magnitude

Mass., April 5, 1842, by Rev. J. C. Webster, now of Wheaton, Ill. All wished them many happy years to come, and Dr. Belding hoped to be able to attend the next fortieth anniversary, but Mrs. Parker said, "I don't believe you can take me by surprise again as you have this time."

—Geo. Sears has been quite sick for a few days, but is now better and we hope to see him out soon.

—Our fruit growers are somewhat troubled about the cold weather of the past few days having hurt the buds on the trees.

The Congregational church was decorated with a beautiful display of flowers and foliage, last Sabbath, and Rev. E. L. Dresser gave us a sermon suitable for Easter Sunday.

—A great many farmers will finish their seeding this week. Winter grain never looked better.

A large number of friends went to Beloit, last Sunday, to attend the funeral of Mrs. John A. Holmes.

—Rev. G. D. Fellows' wife has gone to Appleton, Wis., to remain until June, and he has to consider himself a single man again.

—Dr. Bell, of Beloit, was in town last week. We are glad to see the Doctor looking so well.

—John Weirick and Hod Brown have gone after those uncertain birds called wild pigeons. We wish them a "catch" so they will not have to walk home.

Nearly a Miracle.

E. Asenith Hall, Binghamton, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for several months with a dull pain through left lung and shoulders. I lost my spirits, appetite and color, and could with difficulty keep up all day. My mother procured some Broun's Blood Purifiers; I took them as directed, and have felt no pain since first week after using them, and am now quite well." Price, $1.00; trial size, 10 cents.

The Nervous American.

The greatest maker of telescopes is Alvan Clark, of Cambridgeport, Mass. He is now engaged in making a larger instrument than any ever before attempted. The part of the work requiring the greatest skill is lens grinding, of which one who visited the factory says:

"The process of lens grinding, so far as it goes, is a very interesting one. The glass itself has been heretofore obtained from Chance & Co., of Birmingham, England, but now is received from Paris. The glass from which small lenses are made is generally cast in thick sheets, while that for the largest ones comes in disks, slightly convexed. The first rough grinding of the larger glasses is done by machinery, the grindstone being a rapidly revolving equatorial concave iron wheel, over which a small stream of water and granulated iron is kept running. This wears away the glass very fast, preparing it for the second process, which is a finer grinding with iron tools and emery. Then follows the special local work of correcting the spherical aberrations of the glass. This work is principally done by Alvan G. Clark, the son, and his brother, George B. Clark, although there is one man in their employ who is capable of doing it. This local application is more than half of the work on large glasses, and requires a knowledge which years and experience alone give. It is a very slow operation, as the glass has to be slightly warmed, taken to the observation room, there tested and corrected. An observation cannot be taken often than once in two hours, consequently but little can be done in a day. The observation room has to be kept cold and dark, and working in it is very disagreeable. The last operation on the glass itself is that of polishing, which is done with pitch and rouge, days and even weeks being necessary to bring it to its required condition."

A singular fact connected with this establishment is, that all the workmen employed are foreigners, but one, and for the reason, as Mr. Clark says, that Americans are too nervous to do the exact work required, such as dividing a small metal circle into 140 parts. The Americans somewhat the credit which would otherwise attach to the country for making the largest and best telescopes in the world, for it seems we can only do it by the aid of foreign workmen. There is one establishment of this kind at Munich, one at Dublin, and one at York, England; but they are hardly competitors of Clark, who has a world-wide reputation for special skill in this business. To his peculiar genius we owe the fact that such an establishment exists at all in this country.

The Windiest City.

A citizen of Buffalo, who had been reproached with living in the windiest city in the land, wrote, some years since, to General Myers for the statistics on the subject. In reply he received a table which he has just published in the Buffalo Courier, showing the quantity of wind, measured in miles, which passed over the principal cities of the United States during the year ending November 30, 1874. The following is the table:

Name of City.	Miles (Name of City).	Miles.
Albany, N. Y.	35,763	Indianapolis, Ind.	40,374
Baltimore, Md.	53,361	Louisville, Ky.	50,385
Boston, Mass.	56,634	Milwaukee, Wis.	50,482
Buffalo, N. Y.	80,314	Monterey, Cal.	44,007
Carthage, S. C.	65,484	Nashville, Tenn.	39,691
Chicago, Ill.	80,673	New Orleans, La.	60,076
Detroit, Mich.	61,572	New York, N. Y.	52,621
Duluth, Minn.	60,308	Norfolk, Va.	70,779
Eastport, Me.	79,893	San Francisco, Cal.	34,896
Eliz. Pa.	64,883	Savannah, Ga.	56,942
Galveston, Tex.	56,721	St. Louis, Mo.	51,646
Philadelphia, Pa.	81,577	Washington, D. C.	64,619

Nor.—The record for Philadelphia was incomplete, but it showed 51,577 miles for less than eleven months.

Milwaukee has the doubtful honor of being the windiest city in the land.

Gems.

The rarest of all gems is not the diamond, which follows after the ruby. This in its turn allows precedence to the chrysoberyl—popularly known as the cat's eye. The true stone comes from Ceylon, though Pliny knew of something similar under the name of zillimall in found in the bed of the Euphrates. Can we wonder, when we look at one of these singular productions of nature, with its silver streak in the center, and observe, as we move it ever so slightly, the magic rays of varying light illumine its surface, that it was an object of profound reverence to the ancients? The possessor was supposed never to grow poorer, but always to increase his substance. The largest known is now in the possession of Mr. Bryce Wright, the well-known mineralogist. It is recorded in the annals of Ceylon, and known to history as the finest in the world. Two stars of lesser magnitude subtle by its size, and we are informed that three such stones are not known to exist elsewhere in the wide world.—London Graphic.

It is now claimed that vaccination was discovered in China.

The Modern Cook.

[Mrs. M. B. Welch, in College Monthly.]

What are some of the things that every cook who prepares a meal for any family ought to know? Unless the whole routine of her work be haphazard and unreliable, she should have intelligent and well defined opinions concerning the relations of food to physical growth, so that she can furnish that which is the best adapted to the whole household, fit to build up healthful and symmetrical bodies for the children as well as the mature workers in the family, the nutriment necessary to keep good the balance between supply and demand. The children should not fail to develop properly on account of her ignorance of their needs. The father should never give out more vitality in his struggle with the world than she can make good to him as she prepares his daily food. All this applies a practical application of the principles taught in physiology and chemistry, as well as a knowledge of the kind and the quality of nutriment stored in plants, flesh, fish and fowl. Each air and sea food has her own materials, which she must understand how to prepare, so that it can be transformed into bone, blood and muscle in such proportion that each shall have its proper development. She must be both too wise and too humane to concoct any dish or brew any drink that will induce dyspepsia, headache or dullness.

Never until the cook gives more thought to the mastery of such studies will cookery take its proper place among the sciences. These bodies of ours are exceedingly complicated and delicate machines, not to be safely tampered with by bungling. A blacksmith can undertake with greater impunity to make a watch than an ignorant and untrained housekeeper to build up, without knowledge or skill, a symmetrical and perfectly developed human body. And when the value of these bodies, not only as physical organisms, but as related to mental growth, is fully appreciated, the work of the skilled cook will rank with that of other great philanthropists. It is not extravagant to say that the progress of humanity toward true perfecting depends largely upon this branch of domestic economy. How much thought and study are given to the proper food for the stock. Surely we owe as much care to our children as to our herds. It is certainly true that just in proportion to the advance of any people in civilization will be the advance of care and skill in the preparation of the articles of food. It is, therefore, worthy of an absorbing study. Health, mental vigor, virtue and happiness are more closely dependent than we are apt to imagine on the cook that reigns in the kitchen.

Short-Sighted.

There were two short-sighted men, Ching and Chang, who were always quarreling and who could see the best. As they had heard there was to be a tablet erected at the gate of a neighboring temple, they determined that they would visit it together on a given day, and put their power of eyesight to the test. But each desiring to take advantage of the other, Ching went by stealth to the temple, and looking quite close to the tablet he saw an inscription with the words, "To the great man of the past and the future."

Chang also went, prying yet closer, and in addition to the inscription, "To the great man of the past and the future," he read in smaller characters, "This tablet is erected by the family of Ling, in honor of the great man."

On the day appointed, standing at a distance from which neither of them could read, Ching exclaimed, "The inscription is, 'To the great man of the past and the future.'"

"True," said Chang, "but you have left out a part of the inscription, which I can read but you cannot, and which is written in smaller letters: 'Erected by the family of Ling, in honor of the great man.'"

"There is no such inscription," said Ching.

"There is!" said Chang.

So they waded wroth, and after abusing each other, they agreed to refer the matter to the high priest of the temple. He heard their story and quietly said: "There is no tablet to read; it was taken into the interior of the temple yesterday."

Lodger at Long Branch hotel upon being presented with his bill--fifteen dollars for two days! Polite Clerk--Correct, sir; you read figures like a banker's clerk. Lodger--Do you take me for a bonanza mine on its travels? Polite Clerk--Far from it; but you had one of the best rooms in the house. Lodger--One of the best rooms in the house? Why, it wasn't bigger'n a coal-bin, and I had to sleep with my legs out of the window. Polite Clerk--That's just what you see, when a guest sleeps with his legs out of the window, he says change him two dollars and a half.

Dear as a Post.

Mrs. W. J. Lang, Bethany, Ont., states that for fifteen months she was troubled with a disease in the ear, causing entire deafness. In ten minutes after using THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL she found relief, and in a short time she was entirely cured and her hearing restored, as told by A. J. Roberts, and Sherwin Co.

Bananas.

Of late years the banana trade has increased wonderfully. Formerly they were only shipped during what was termed the regular season, arriving here between May and August. But as bananas could be planted in the tropics during any month in the year, and thus grown and ripened every month, planters were induced to try the experiment, and now, as is well-known, bananas are seen on sale in our city markets, every week in the year. Unlike other tropical fruits we get it in its perfection. It is not a whit better eaten fresh picked from the tree, than it is when brought here after having been picked green and then allowed weeks to ripen at sea and on shore. It rather improves while the tropical fruits are spoiling, and is never better than when half blackened and looking too soft and far gone to be fit to eat, it "peels" at a touch, and leaves a delicious fruity pulp to be enjoyed liberally. A true child of the sun, it grows on the most tropical-looking of all trees. The great, green, herbaceous trunk, looking like an exaggerated, and over-succulent corn stalk, grown into the dimensions of a moderate-sized pear tree, is crowned by its wealth of drooping and enormously long broad leaves--the whole having an expression more characteristically and self-evidently tropical than all that an ice bear expresses of polar life. The fruit grows upon the top of a trunk, which latter ranges from eight to fifteen feet in height; each fruitful stalk bearing one bunch of bananas, resembling, in position and hanging, a sunflower in the height of its summer glory. The trees have the property of keeping the soil moist around them, and have, therefore, been planted in proximity to coffee trees in Venezuela, where long droughts occur. As that country cannot consume all the fruit, it has begun to export extensively. With so many new sources of supply, we may be quite certain that our markets will be well stocked with bananas, and at low prices during their season. They are a perishable fruit, and must be disposed of quickly; hence the advisability of low prices and ready sales.

How Postage Stamps are Made.

In printing, steel plates are used, on which two hundred stamps are engraved. Two men are kept hard at work covering them with colored inks, and passing them to a man and girl, who are equally busy at printing them with large rolling hand presses. Three of these little squads are employed all the time, although ten presses can be put into use in case of necessity. After the small sheets of paper upon which the two hundred stamps are engraved have dried enough, they are sent into another room and gummed. The gum used for the purpose is a peculiar composition, made of the powder of dried vegetables mixed with water, which is better than any other material, for instance gum arabic, which cracks the paper badly. The paper is also of a peculiar texture, somewhat similar to that used for bank-notes, and after having been again dried, this time on little racks, which are fanned by steam power for half an hour, they are put between sheets of pasteboard and pressed by hydraulic presses, capable of applying a weight of two thousand tons. The next thing is to cut the sheets in half; each sheet, when cut, contains two hundred stamps. This is done by a girl with a large pair of shears, cutting by hand being preferred to that of machinery, which method would destroy too many stamps. They are then passed to other squads, who in as many operations perforate the sheets between the stamps. Next they are pressed once more and then packed and labelled and stowed away in another room, preparatory to being put in mail-bags for dispatching to fill orders. If a single stamp is torn or in any way mutilated, the whole sheet of one hundred is burned. About five hundred thousand are burned every week from this cause. For the last twenty years not a single sheet has been lost, such care has been taken in counting them. During the progress of manufacturing the sheets are counted eleven times.

"William," the druggist remarked to his clerk, "where did this package of brown wrapping paper come from?"

"It's just a sample, sir, sent us by Pulp, Fibre & Co., but we can't use it; it's too coarse and heavy for our use."

"Ah, well," replied the honest druggist, "do not waste it; put it in the window and sell it for fly paper."--Burlington Hawkeye.

A Good Housewife.

A young man from Cleveland visited some friends in this city the other day, and was shown around generally. Finally one of them asked him if he wouldn't like to see the Widows' Home. He said if they were good-looking widows he would as lief see them home as not, though he would prefer to escort but one at a time.--Cincinnati Saturday Night.

Sponge Underclothing.

Sponge underclothing is a recent novelty, invented and patented in Berlin. It is claimed for it that it can be cleaned more easily than woolen goods, and, being more flexible, does not chafe the skin so much. It is a bad conductor and tends to keep the surface temperature uniform. One who wears this underclothing is not likely to take cold, for it absorbs the perspiration without checking it. After the mineral and vegetable impurities in the sponges have been sufficiently beaten by a heavy hammer to admit of being readily washed out, the sponges are dried and pared with a sharp knife. These parings are then sewed together. The fabric is prepared without any use of poisonous dyes, which, as incorporated in cloth underclothing, sometimes proves very deleterious to the system.

The Fall.

Here is a boy's composition on fall. This is fall, because it falls on this season of the year. Leaves fall, too, as well as thermometers and the price of straw hats. Old toppers, who sign the pledge in summer, are liable to fall when fall color-making opens, for straws show which way the color goes. Husking corn is one of the pleasures of fall, but pleasure isn't good for boys, I don't think. Old men want a little fun; I don't think. A husky old man can go through a good deal of corn, sometimes. Digging taters is another of our fall amusements. The way I like to dig taters is to wait until they are baked nicely, and then dig them out of their skins. Most winter schools open in the fall. The best winter school I went to didn't open until spring, and the first day it opened the teacher took sick, and the school house was locked up for the season. Once in a while we have a very severe fall, but nothing like the fall of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Summer is misnamed. It should be called pride, for doesn't pride go before a fall?

Etiquette in Writing.

With regard to writing letters, none but school girls cross and recross a sheet of writing paper, two sheets of paper are invariably used, if one sheet of paper will not contain all that is to be said. If half the second sheet of paper is left blank, it is not torn off, a whole sheet being more convenient to hold and to fold than is a half sheet of paper. If a few last words are necessary to complete a letter, they are written on the margin, not on the writing across the face of the paper. In addressing envelopes the address should be written legibly in the center of the envelope and not run off into a corner, leaving a third of the envelope blank. Many people write their initials or name in full in one corner of the envelope; this is quite a matter of inclination.--Homes Journal.

A Mistake.

It happened in a rolling mining town in Colorado. There was a grand ball at the ranch of Whisky Jack, a well-known character in the "diggings," and the "elite" of the district responded to the call in full force. The party was held in a rickety old barn belonging to the host, and with a few red strips of flannel, a grotesque accumulation of mountain roses, and a row of dripping candles, the appointment of the place were perfect. My first partner in the giddy dance was the wife of the man who killed the village postmaster because he refused him a dance; she was fat, fair and forty, and danced with the grace of a cow. My next partner was the daughter of this charming pair, a young girl just bursting into the loveliness of womanhood; she was badly freckled, and sported a wart on her nose. My next partner was a blooming green widow, a fresh arrival; and then I rested. I began to comment on new faces in the room. My companion in this pleasant pastime was a heavy-bearded miner, uncouth, roughly dressed, tobacco slobbered, and very profane. This was our first meeting, and I hoped it would be the last.

"There goes a hard looking case," I whispered, as the wife of the man who killed the postmaster sailed by. "She's a bad 'un."

"Yes," replied the man, "I'd hate to have the critter step on me. What an elegant target she would make for a poor marksman!"

"Yes," I said, and turned my eyes on a tall, raw-boned creature sailing towards us supported by a little man with sandy whiskers and red-top boots.

"Here comes the boss."

"How?"

"The boss, I say; ain't she a lovely chimpanzee?"

"A what?"

"Chimpanzee!"

He glared at me a moment and then reached for his revolver.

"What is a chimpanzee?" he growled fiercely, his red eyes growing large.

I saw that I had made some mistake, and hastened to explain.

"Why--why, I stammered, backing off, 'a chimpanzee is a lovely creature found in Africa--nothing so gorgeously beautiful as a chimpanzee. That is the highest compliment a lady can receive.'"

"O!" and the man looked relieved.

"Yes, I think so, myself, stranger; she is a lovely chimpanzee; she's my wife."

The Latest Snake Story.

While my wife and I were busily engaged back of our log cabin clearing the ground, our little four-year-old girl had strayed from the house into the deep, dark forest. We looked all that evening for her, but could find no trace of her whereabouts. We came back, but sleep was far from us. We sat and speculated all night.

The next day several of the neighbors joined in the search, but to no avail. We camped out that night, and at midnight were aroused by many and loud noises of hissing and rattling. We jumped up and followed the direction from which the sounds came, and had not gone far when we all stopped suddenly as if we had been rooted to the ground, for before us we beheld our little girl surrounded by three dozen rattlesnakes, varying in size from three inches to fifteen feet, the larger ones standing on their tails in a circle, with erect bodies and necks curved down toward the head of the infant in the center.

We looked on in horror but could do nothing as the girl was in too dangerous a position. But when, after the snakes had, as we supposed, danced their war dance and sung their dirge for the larger ones made each for the lowest branch on one of the trees in a direct line with our cabin. Wrapping one end of their bodies around the branch they dropped the other end toward the ground.

In the meantime two large snakes had wrapped one end of their bodies around the child, so that one of her heads was on one side and the other on the opposite side. One of these snakes then tied itself with the one hanging from above; they then swung themselves, together with the child, till the snake hanging on the child could catch the snake hanging on the adjoining tree, when the former let go and the latter swung the child to the next. During this novel proceeding the other snakes kept up an incessant jubilee rattle till the child was landed inside of our cabin safe and sound, when they once more repeated the scene in the woods by dancing around her, after which they left.--Williamsport Sun and Banner.
